MARITIME WARFARE

AIM OF COURSE

To develop an understanding of the doctrine, planning and conduct of maritime operations in a joint and combined environment. To provide an appreciation of the factors involved in decision making at the Component Commander level and below.

OUTLINE SYLLABUS

The course breaks down into three, week long modules:

- ♦ Week 1 – Maritime Warfare module – provides doctrinal and tactical updates, gives an update of Maritime Warfare in each environment, and outlines the Structures and Formations that make up the current Naval structure
- ♦ Week 2 – With clear focus on the Estimate Process, week 2 starts with the Legal Framework and ROE considerations for operations, before exercising the use of the 7 Questions Maritime Tactical Estimate with wargames to put into practice the teachings. These wargames reflect the current usage of the Contingent Forces in an Royal Navy Task Group construct. The first two weeks reach classifications of NATO SECRET (Releasable to Australia and New Zealand) and are open to international students
- ♦ Week 3 – Provides the students with the SECRET (AUSCANNZLUKUSA EYES ONLY) overview of unit capabilities and limitations, tactical developments, and a look at the future forces. The students have the opportunity to examine (supported by the relevant Green Papers and TacNotes) specific warfare problems in order to understand how the latest tactics and doctrine applies in the development of a Course of Action

Reaching classifications of SECRET UK Eyes Only, week 3 is not routinely available to international students, other than AUSTRALIA, CANADA, NEW ZEALAND, UK and US, and even these will be excused certain lectures.
