Service Pupil Premium (SPP)

What is it?

SPP is funded and administered by the Department for Education (DfE) as part of the commitment to delivering the Armed Forces Covenant.

SPP is used by eligible schools to offer mainly pastoral support to Service children during challenging times and to help mitigate the negative impact of family mobility or parental deployment.

What Parents need to do:

Inform their school that their child is a Service child before the January school Census.

This should be done in writing and schools may ask you to fill in a form.

What schools need to do:

Schools will need to record all Service children in their January school census submission to the DfE.

Eligibility

Only schools in England are eligible for SPP.

A school is eligible if any of its pupils meet one of the following criteria:

- They have one parent serving in the regular armed forces (this includes a parent on full time commitment as part of the full time reserve service);
- They have been registered as a 'service child' on the January school census at any point since 2015;
- One of their parents died whilst serving in the armed forces and that pupil receives a pension under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme or the War Pensions Scheme.
